

The PEOPLE behind our steel.

Jim, 33 Years

“Willbanks Metals has provided financial stability, friendships, challenges, and opportunities for myself and my family that would have been hard to find in typical corporate America in the last 25 years. All these things still exist and can be seen and felt every day at WMI. Great personal motivators for me, even as I begin year 34, are that no two days are exactly the same and anyone here can make a difference. Over the years I have watched many competitors come and go while WMI continues to grow stronger and larger—in a word: exciting!”

“Since joining this company, I have found a genuine team effort, and that my input is valued and taken into consideration. You have a clear understanding of your job duties and exactly what is expected in your performance from day one. The company is growing and I feel there are real opportunities for my growth and career advancement with Willbanks.”

Justin, 4 years

“I started working here in December of 2009. I came to work for Willbanks Metals because of my relationship with Ryan Letz. I bought steel from WMI for a few years while working with another metal company. The most enjoyable part of being on the WMI team is working with my coworkers and building strong business partnerships with our customers.”
